

MYSTIFIED AS TO THE CAUSE

Politicians Fail To See The Necessity Of The Special Session Called.

WHAT IS REAL PURPOSE A SECRET

Madison People Cannot Understand The New Move Of The Chief Executive In Calling Members Together.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 23.—The most sensational report in connection with the purposes of the special session of the Wisconsin legislature which Governor La Follette has called for December 4 is that an investigation will be made of the business and methods of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee, the largest company outside of the great concerns now being probed by the Hughes committee of the New York legislature. The tenth specification of the work for which the special session of the legislature was called, in the language of the executive proclamation, is "to investigate the expenditures of insurance companies, railroad and other public service corporations doing business in this state and enact laws in reference thereto." It is said that it would be absurd for the Wisconsin legislature to attempt to investigate the insurance companies now being probed by the New York committee at Albany.

But Two Companies.

Wisconsin has two old line life insurance companies, the Northwestern Mutual of Milwaukee and the Wisconsin Life of Madison. The latter is a small company only ten years old and manifestly the investigation of its methods and business is not a purpose for calling the legislature. The Northwestern Mutual is commonly held by Wisconsin people to be a safe insurance company. It was examined a year ago by State Insurance Commissioner Zeno H. Host. A few months ago there was told an alarming story in Milwaukee and Madison, to the effect that a state official had been the recipient of a paid-up policy from the Mutual of Milwaukee for $10,000. An attempt was made to look into the incident and the discovery was made that a state official possessed a $10,000 paid-up policy in the company, but that a cancelled check was shown as evidence that the official had paid the current rates for the contract by giving his personal check. The story stopped there and no attempt was made to exploit it. While the authorities at the capitol refuse to say that it is proposed to investigate the Northwestern Mutual, they say that such a thing is perfectly admissible under the language of the proclamation for the extra session.

The Pure Politics

Political gossip strongly suggests that Governor La Follette will urge the enactment of a flat rate of two cents per mile for passenger traffic in Wisconsin. Such a measure has been introduced and killed in the past several legislatures, and it is believed here to be improbable that the governor would try to force it through at a special session. In his proclamation he stipulates as one of the purposes of the extra session the amendment of the railroad rate commission law enacted at the last regular session. It is known that the rate commission has found some serious flaws in the law and that an amendment also is desired to require the railroads to keep separate accounts of their state and interstate business. It is also desired that the legislature shall make a statutory definition of state and interstate business, in order to be more forceful than if done by a ruling of the commission.

A State Sensation

The calling of the extra session is still a state sensation, and the political critics of Governor La Follette declare that it is more for the creation and emphasis of political campaign issues than demanded by the welfare of the state. Naturally the friends of the governor approve of the action.

Madison people are glad, whatever the special was called for or whatever it may bring forth. Hotels will be filled. Many houses will get revenues for lodging the law-makers. Even though the members of the senate and assembly will receive no compensation for this short session, there will be a goodly amount of money put into circulation in this modest and generous settlement. Every merchant is willing to say that special sessions are as desirable for Madison as they are infrequent.

Madison Jubilant

The greatest reason for the satisfaction felt in Madison over the extra session is that it will bring legislation that will probably hasten the commencement of the work of building the new capitol. The law enacted by the last legislature was examined by the capitol commission and many points were brought up that needed explanation. It was referred to the attorney general and his opinion held that the terraces must be included in the ground area of the building. This would reduce the size of the main structure so much that the commission felt that it ought not to proceed at all until additional legislation could be had upon the subject. The asphalt rider, delaying the capitol work until the completion of the asphalt pavement will doubtless be repealed, as the city of Madison is progressing with this work with all possible speed and enough of the pavement has been completed to give assurance that there is no longer necessity for statutory provisions to compel the completion of the improvement.

No Hints

No indication is obtainable on the question of whether or not the governor will go to the United States senate. Some, and this is gossip again, think that he wants to make issues for a campaign for a fourth term as governor, and then make these issues so far as practicable national and run for the nomination for president. These industrious "chin musicians" are firm in the belief that Governor La Follette has called the special session for the purpose of manufacturing issues and a good excuse for declining to go to the senate. However, the trend of opinion inclines to the belief that, while there must of necessity be a large political element in the calling of the session, the governor is quite frank and has told in his proclamation as much as possible of the reasons for which the call was determined upon, and that he will, when necessary, resign and go to Washington to take greater official burdens.

Ouster Proceedings

St. Louis, Nov. 23.—The taking of depositions in the ouster proceeding against the Standard, Waters, Pierce and Republic oil companies brought by the attorney general, has begun.

An entirely new line of evidence developed by the testimony of William A. Morgan, tending to show that false gauges were used by the Standard to make it appear to prospective consumers they were getting more oil than for which they paid.

McClellan's Birthday

New York, Nov. 23.—Mayor McClellan of New York was forty years old today. Personally he observed the anniversary quietly, but Mr. McClellan was the recipient of congratulatory telegrams from all parts of the country.

Japan to Boston

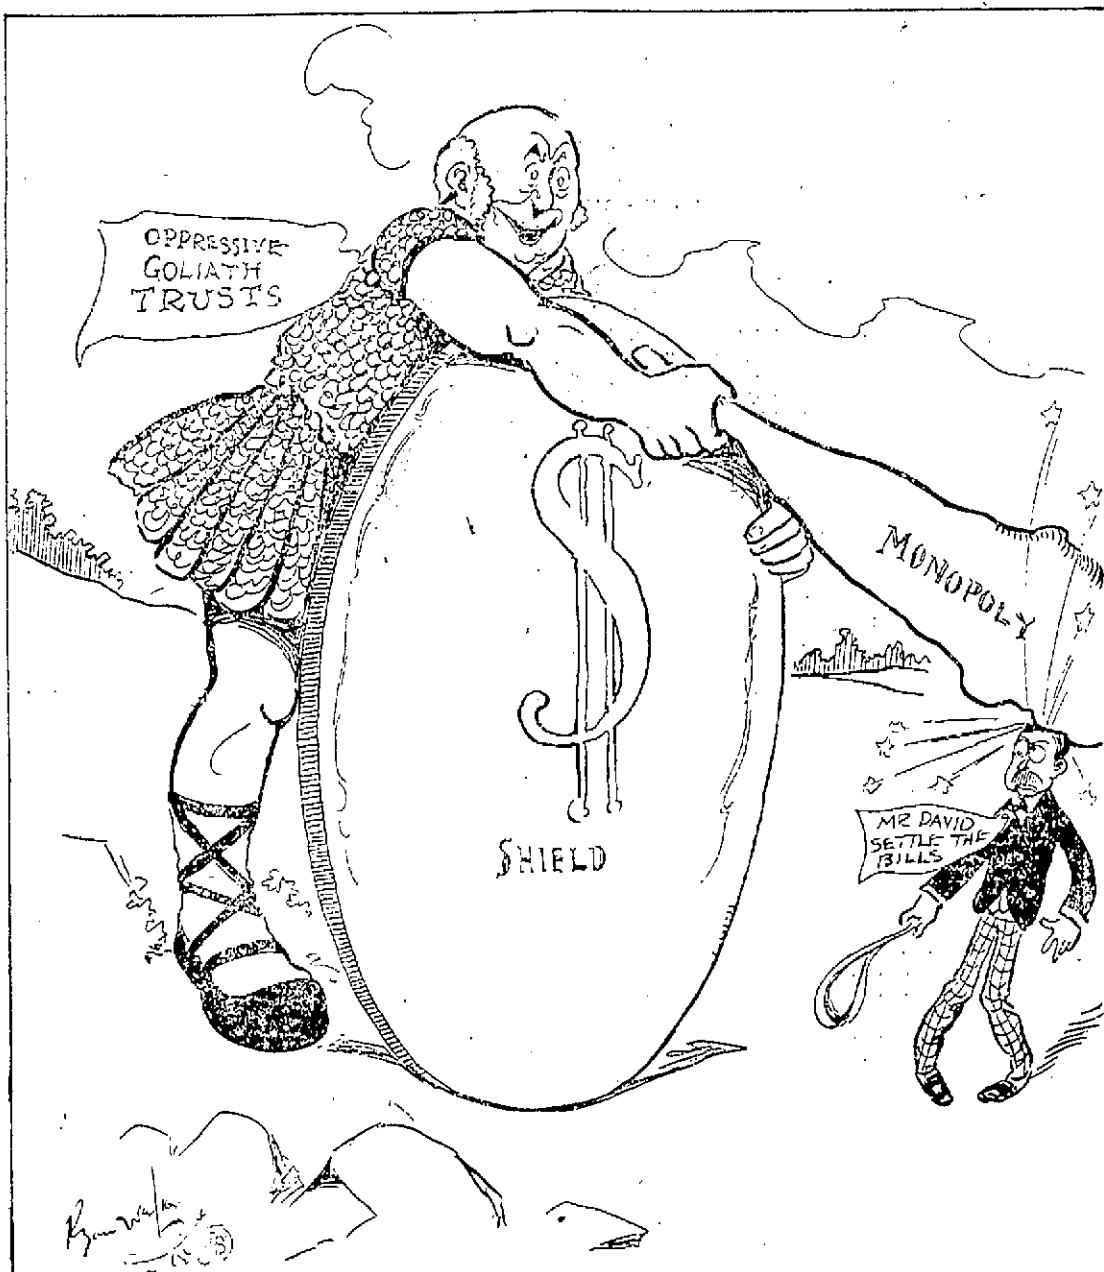

Boston, Nov. 23.—The Afghan Prince, from Yokohama, Manila, Singapore and Colombo, arrived here today, inaugurating a new steamship service between Japan and Chinese ports and Boston. This line will give local merchants an opportunity to receive shipments from the Far East by direct steamer instead of by transshipment at other ports, as heretofore. It will result in diverting an immense amount of freight now shipped to New England by way of Pacific coast ports.

New York City Bonds

New York, Nov. 23.—Comptroller Grout today sold $12,500,000 worth of three and one-half per cent. city bonds, maturing in 1935. A number of out-of-town brokers took lots of the bonds which are sold to get money for extensive city improvements.

District Attorney Has Gained Important Witness in Girl Suffering as Did Victim.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Wausau, Wis., Nov. 23.—The Ohls case, growing out of the sensational death of Ida Gutzmer, of this place was continued here today. The prosecution, in charge of District Attorney Lamoreaux, is said to have gained a very important witness against Oels in a young girl, who was found in Oels's house seriously ill, supposedly as the result of an operation similar to that which is said to have caused the death of Ida Gutzmer.

A CELEBRATION IN MEMORY OF MARTYRS

Fenians, Executed for Accidental Killing of Policeman, Honored with Parade.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Dublin, Nov. 23.—A large parade and celebration were held here today in memory of the Manchester Martyrs, Allen, Larkin and O'Brien, who were executed November 23, 1867, for the accidental killing of a policeman during the rescue of two Fenian prisoners from a jail van in Manchester. Speeches were made and sympathy expressed from the hosts of starving and unemployed of Great Britain and Ireland.

THREE CARDINALS NEWLY APPOINTED

Pope Pius creates Officers at Consistory in Rome—One for South America.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rome, Nov. 23.—Three new Cardinals are to be created by Pope Pius X. at the Consistory which began today. Probably the most noted of them is Mgr. Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, England. Mgr. Arcovoverde of Albuquerque, Metropolitan of Rio Janeiro, and Mgr. Cagiano de Azevedo the Pope's major domo, will be the others of the trio. In naming Mgr. Albuquerque, it will be the first Cardinal to be appointed for South America, and much gratification is felt in the churches of Brazil, where he will have his headquarters. Mgr. Bisset will be appointed major domo to succeed Mgr. de Azevedo, and will retain his present position of master of the pontifical chamber, having charge of the two offices.

Archbishop Bourne succeeded the late Archbishop Herbert Vaughan as the head of English Catholicism, and is one of the most prominent of English speaking Archbishops. There will also be nominated five bishops for Hungary to dioceses which have been vacant for a long time, and which the Vatican authorities have found much difficulty in filling because of the aversion of the Hungarians to accept bishops of Austrian nationality.

COURT MARTIAL HAS BEGUN TESTIMONY

Meriwether Claims He Was Much Set on by Second Class Men Recently.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MAR.]

Annapolis, Nov. 23.—The second day's session of the court martial of Midshipman Meriwether began today with the reading of the record of Wednesday. The defense proposes to show Meriwether was persecuted by the second class men, particularly by Branch.

Commander Zeigler, executive officer of the training ship Hartford, testified that Meriwether was on the cruise last summer for a month and a half, during which time the naval regulations forbidding fights between persons in the navy was read to all cadets and posted on the gun deck for the information of all. Dr. Stone, chief medical officer of the academy, would not swear that Branch's death was not caused by a diseased tissue, because his father forbade an autopsy.

Dr. R. W. F. Wiseman, postmaster at Culver, Ind., is to be reappointed, recommendation to this effect being made to Washington by Congressman Brick.

LEGISLATIVE GRAFT TRIALS COMMENCED

Alleged Arkansas Boodlers in One of the Bitterest Battles Ever Waged in the State.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 23.—The legislative boodle cases were brought to trial here today. The case of Senator A. T. Gross is the first one on the calendar. Both the state and defendants have accumulated a monumental mass of evidence for the fight, which is expected to be one of the bitterest legislative battles ever waged in the state.

MARSHALL FIELD, JR., ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Son of Chicago Millionaire Wounded Himself with a Revolver Last Evening.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MAR.]

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 23.—Marshall Field, Jr., is alive this morning and has a fighting chance for recovery. He is expected to live through the day. The special train with Marshall Field, Sr., and his wife aboard left Buffalo at 8:42 for Chicago. At 10:30 the physicians announced that the crisis is not likely to be today. The patient is resting easier.

Hastening Home
Eric, Pa., Nov. 23.—The Field special train passed here at 10:27 this morning.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 23.—Marshall Field was seen for a moment as the engines were being changed here. He appeared at the rear door of the private car and inquired anxiously of the newspaper men for his son's condition. He appeared to be cheered to know that Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus believed his son will recover. He emphatically declared the report of an attempted suicide is a lie.

The Accident

It was announced Marshall Field Jr., only son of the Chicago merchant and capitalist, shot himself in the left side with a 32-caliber, automatic pistol at his home, 1519 Prairie avenue, shortly before 6 o'clock last night, inflicting a wound which it is feared will cause his death. At the Mercy hospital, where the wounded man was taken, it was said that he had a slight chance to recover.

Having been informed of the shooting by long-distance telephone, Marshall Field and his wife, formerly Mrs. Arthur Cator, who have been staying at the Holland house in New York, started for Chicago at 10:44 o'clock last night. They chartered a special train of four cars, and Mr. Field urgently requested that the greatest speed be made. The train was scheduled to make the run in eighteen hours.

Mr. Field was alone in his dressing-room when the shot was fired, and he became unconscious soon afterward, making no statement as to how the shooting took place. He was taken to Mercy hospital, where an operation was performed and the bullet was removed from beneath the skin, slightly at the left of the spine.

The ball had entered the left side a little below the ribs and had perforated the spleen and the liver, narrowly missing the intestines. Serious hemorrhages ensued and this feature of the case led the attending physicians and surgeons to hold out no hope further than that the patient had a chance for recovery.

SULTAN DEFIES POWERS' FLEET

Refuses To Grant The Demands Made, And Prepares To Resist Any Interference.

COMBINED FLEET IS ONLY WAITING

Will Enforce The Demands Made Upon The Sick Man,
And See That They Are Carried Out
As Was Directed.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MAR.]

Constantinople, Nov. 23.—The Sultan has been advised if he grants the demands of the powers to give them the ministrations of the finances of Macedonia it will weaken the loyalty of the Macedonians to the Turks and strengthen the revolutionary party in Turkey. The possibility of the Sultan's granting the constitution were discussed. The Sultan today approved of the decision of the council of ministers to reject the demands of the Powers for an international control of the finances of Macedonia. Vice Admiral Huseini Pasha started on a special steamer for the Dardanelles with instructions to the commander of the forts in the event of the appearance of the international fleet. Similar instructions were sent to the governors of the Turkish islands in the archipelago.

Allied Fleets Waiting

Athens, Nov. 23.—The warships of the powers which propose to make a demonstration against Turkey arrived at Piraeus Wednesday and exchanged salutes and official visits. The commanders of the vessels are awaiting instructions.

Decide to Refuse Obedience.

Constantinople, Nov. 23.—The Sultan has refused to comply with the demands of the powers regarding Macedonia. This decision was taken at a council of ministers held Wednesday. The Sultan approving, a reply to this effect was sent to Baron de Calice, the Austrian ambassador, who, as doyen of the diplomatic corps, had presented the joint proposals of the powers.

It is understood the porte's note demurs to the scheme as an interference with the Sultan's prerogatives and as calculated to offend public opinion, which would certainly oppose it.

It is further stated that the porte will not sanction the extension of the mandates to the foreign agents who are superintending reforms in Macedonia beyond the two years originally fixed.

Powers Ready to Act.

London, Nov. 23.—The Sultan having finally rejected the demands of the powers the combined fleets now at Piraeus under Admiral Vonnipper of the Austrian navy presumably will forthwith carry out the measures which are intended to bring the Turk to his knees. Of the effectiveness of their action doubt is widely expressed in Europe, although their course of action can only be speculated upon.

Among the difficulties foreseen is the blockading of the Dardanelles, assuming that is part of the international scheme. There is a lack of homogeneity among the vessels of the combined fleet. The British cruiser Lancaster is the fastest among them, it having a speed of twenty-four knots. The speed of most of the others ranges from twenty to twenty-one knots, but the Russian vessels are obsolete, and only capable of making twelve knots. It is claimed, however, the international squadron will be able to land nearly 3,000 men and twenty guns if desirable, but it is not suggested what such a force would be able to achieve.

BRODHEAD REGISTER FAVORS DUNWIDDIE

Says the Green County Bar Association Will Make Him Their Candidate.

In discussing the candidates for the circuit judgeship of the twelfth district, the Brodhead Register makes the announcement that with all probability the Green County Bar association will endorse Judge Dunwiddie. After explaining the action of the Rock county bar the Register says: "Green county will have a candidate and in all probability that candidate will be Judge Dunwiddie. He is an original Green county boy. He has filled the chair of circuit judge for several years in a most acceptable manner, and has announced his candidacy for re-election. The Rock County bar meeting included but a fraction of its members, many declining to express themselves so early in the contest. Judge Grimm of Jefferson is out as a candidate, but he can scarcely expect much support outside his county. From present appearances none of the candidates have any great chance of securing sufficient following to insure election in the face of Judge Dunwiddie's candidacy."

STOLEN PILE-DRIVER WEIGHT RECOVERED AT A JUNK SHOP

Town of Rock Had Been Looking for the Missing Piece of Mechanism for Some Time.

Some time ago, the weight or hammer belonging to the town of Rock pile-driver and having a displacement of over a thousand pounds, turned up missing. A quiet search for the same was rewarded today when Chairman F. Rehfeld identified a heavy piece of metal at a South River street junk shop as the missing article. The junk dealer said that he bought the thing of another junk dealer. It may soon be necessary to anchor one's cistern.

= FORTY YEARS AGO =

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, November 23, 1865.—City Items.—Mr. Orrin Gunnesey who for a number of weeks has been absent on a commission to the Indian tribes of the Northwest, returning yesterday with them, has returned to his home in good health. He still speaks good English, as farmers having property to insure will soon learn.

The concert of Mr. Holbrook, which takes place in Lappin's hall, tonight, will be a good one, if carefully and laboriously prepared and good musical taste will make it.

Personal.—We had a call yesterday from Hon. M. M. Jackson, United States consul at Halifax, who is spending a few days among old friends in Wisconsin. The old residents will remember the Judge as a member of the supreme court in territorial times, when the Circuit judges constituted the Supreme Bench, and as Attorney General in an early period in Wisconsin's history. Mr. Lincoln appointed him consul at Halifax soon after his inauguration, the arduous duties of which office he has discharged acceptably to all.

Brigadier General L. F. Hubbard, of Red Wing, Minn., gave us a call last evening. His name will be remembered as one which figured prominently among the officers of Thomas's Army, which so completely squelched Hood's forces around Nashville. By meritorious conduct General

Hubbard rose from rank of captain to that now held by him. He was much esteemed by the officers and men of his command among the former of which was the late Lt. Sargent of this city, Inspector General on his staff.

The Commandants of the Philadelphia, Boston, and Portsmouth Navy Yards have received orders from the Secretary of the Navy to reduce the number of workmen in those establishments. It is also designed to discharge by December 1st, about 2,500 of the workmen in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. There are nearly 6,000 employed there now.

President Johnson, as a reward to two Blackfoot Indians, who rescued two white women from the savages, has agreed to be presented to each of the rescuers a silver medal, $150 in money, and an official document with his signature, narrating the circumstances of their noble conduct.

Mrs. Lincoln has ordered in Zwicau, Germany, a monument for the grave of her husband, the lamented President. It is cut out of serpentine stone of an obscure green color, in the form of a large die, and bears the simple inscription, "Abraham Lincoln." In the middle of October in Bremen, where it will be shipped to this country. The quarries of Zwicau are noted for their stones.

THE EMPIRE MODE IN CARACUL
Nowhere more beautifully than in furs does the Empire mode declare all of its bewitching grace and charm. It goes without saying that it is the short and close-fitted furs that are indicated in this connection; and of those there is none more modish at the moment than caracul. A really beautiful example of this is displayed in the illustration, in which a carriage coat of caracul is shown fashioned after the Empire style. The characteristically short body part has a high rolling collar, the fronts formed into shawl-shaped revers, and the skirts approaching a circular form. A cut. Little touches of royal purple velvet, embroidered in gold and silver, are deftly applied; and the handsome buttons that make for a further decoration, as well as affording fastenings, are of this same royal purple. The sleeve is very full in the upper portion, tapering prettily from the forearm, and dropping into a velvet pocket cuff at the wrist. A fancy black and gold passementerie—the gold predominating—is used to bind the front edges with excellent effect. The tilt of the chapeau presents several points of novelty. First the tilt of the shape, the steep band at the back making for a downward tilt over the forehead, and the smart disposition of the white plumes, those saarting from the ribbon rosettes in the front, and the tips gracefully draped over a similar trimming in the back. The original is in a maroon or chestnut-brown velvet, with black moire ribbons and the white plumes.

NEWVILLE
Newville, Nov. 21.—The Ladies' Aid Society are going to give a New England supper Thanksgiving night. Price ten cents.

There are a number of small-pox cases in Egerton and Newville got a scare of it.

Willie Condon has been sick with the mumps.

Morse Cooper is on the sick list. Ray Bump is shredding south of Milton Junction now.

Remember the Ladies' Aid supper. John Peak's little boy is sick.

Minnie Huse is on the sick list. Mrs. Goodridge and family were callers at Bent Piers's Sunday.

Perry Maxin has killed two deer. Mrs. Peterson, the creamery man's wife, came Saturday night.

Dr. Keenan from up north, has bought the property of the late Dr. McManus.

Browns and Shermans have been getting minnows lately. They all will soon be fishing.

MILTON JUNCTION
Milton Junction, Nov. 21.—Mrs. George Keith and daughter Gladys went to Whitewater Friday and returned Sunday.

Mrs. Pockham has been quite sick. Miss Addie Crandall spent Thursday in Janesville.

Harry Hays has sold his property on Madison Avenue to Randall Thompson.

George Ogden and family visited his brother Charles Sunday.

Miss Madge Kunklin of Fort Atkinson is visiting her grand parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Langworthy and other relatives.

Will Ainsley had a candy pull Saturday evening.

Mrs. Emma Wheeler of Illinois has been visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charnock. She returned to Chicago Monday where she will join her husband, from where they will go to Arizona on account of Mr. Wheeler's health.

Miss Florence Ogden visited relatives in Egerton from Friday until Sunday.

EAST PORTER
East Porter, Nov. 22.—The farmers are appreciating this fine weather and are hurrying their corn husking along.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Price at the parsonage.

Pearl Gary was on the sick list the fore part of the week.

Mrs. M. A. Vedic was thrown from a buggy last week and had her forehead quite badly cut.

Mrs. Ed. Jensen entertained the Ladies' Aid Society last week on Wednesday and entertained Sunday school class in the evening.

Supt. Charles Hemingway of Janesville and Prof. Schute of the Whitewater Normal visited the school in District No. 8 and reported good work being done. Prof. Schute is an institute conductor and is interested in the work of the district schools.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give a program and supper in Fulton on December 8. This will be a good place to purchase Christmas presents and get a good supper at very reasonable prices. Everybody come.

Death came as a relief to William Conway, who had his arms so terribly mangled last week that amputation of both members was necessary.

Mrs. Josephine Brown is at home taking a short rest from her work.

Robert Bentley spent Sunday at home.

Mr. Price gave two excellent sermons last Sunday to good sized congregations.

Explosion Kills Four.
South River, N. J., Nov. 23.—Four men were blown to pieces by an explosion at the laboratory of the International Smokeless Powder and Chemical company at Parlin.

Woman Is Asphyxiated.
St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 23.—Mrs. Emma J. McLean was found dead in her home, 1143 Olive street. The gas was turned on.

500,000 Babies Are Sacrificed
State Official Declares Adulterated Foods an Appalling Menace to the Lives of American Children.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments, the secretary of a state board made the assertion, and produced figures to prove it, that the death of nearly half a million little children in America last year was due to poisons administered in impure foods.

Think of this! Nearly half a million children sacrificed to the murderous greed of food adulterators! It behooves us all to have a care in selecting the food that comes into our homes. The health and lives of our children and our own health are at stake.

Welcome, indeed, is a food that is known to be pure and wholesome, rich in nutrition and good to eat, so good that no other food can take its place. We refer to Malta-Vita.

That delicious, crisp, whole-wheat food. Among all the cereal foods we believe we are warranted in saying that Malta-Vita is the only food that is simply and wholesomely pure grain product and nothing else, except a little salt. It is free from any foreign sweetening agent or other adulterant, and is made in absolute cleanliness.

A perfect breakfast is impossible without Malta-Vita, and it's just as good three times a day. Containing every food element of the best white wheat and pure barley malt extract, it is intensely vitalizing and easily digested.

Let your children have all the Malta-Vita they want and you need not fear for their health. Try some yourself with cream or fruit. You never tasted anything quite so good.

Malta-Vita, every flake baked to a crisp and always ready to eat, is sold by all grocers. Now ten cents.

Wheat prices weakened yesterday under an accumulation of bearish influences. Russian shipments were very large. Argentine weather and crop outlook was fine. December wheat closed at 85 1/2¢ against 85 1/2¢ the day before. Cash wheat premiums are declining—only 2¢ over December. Cash prices in Chicago on corn broke 7 1/2 to 2¢; receipts, 100 cars more than was expected. Oats sympathy with other grains, but lost only about 1/4¢. The rye and barley market for hay and grain remains unchanged, although the offerings are better than a week ago. Live and dressed poultry must improve. Poultry is selling here at as good or better prices than it will bring in Chicago.

Medicine Men Retain Secrets.
Bishop Hanlon, of Uganda, in describing some of his experience in central Africa, said recently that though many of the medicine men had been converted, they could not be induced to carry their confession so far as to divulge their undoubted valuable remedies for native diseases. Some of the converted medicine men were not so reticent, but their revelations were generally worthless.

WEATHER FORECAST

Showers, cooler.

"Making a mull of a thing" is the Scotch phrase for a man who shows little discretion, who "wastes his ammunition," who mixes and muddles an enterprise. Many a merchant makes a "mull" of a store-venture by "wasting his publicity ammunition."

If it takes the legislature six months to pass the primary law, how long will it take it to revise it?

The railroads ought to be happy over the prospect of another day in court.

Dollars to doughnuts that the best guesser can't name the next governor or United States senator.

The governor will now perform another stunt for the benefit of "God's patient poor." Watch his gyrations!

The state is up against the real thing, and the legislature will now have to fish or cut bait, with no compensation for time.

If legislation can be done by proxy, why can't the governor do a little vest-pocket voting and give the boys a chance to recuperate?

Legislators from the northern part of the state had better take up their residence in Madison so as to be ready for a continuous performance.

Mr. Pfister seems to be entertaining the boys in fairly good shape at the commencement of the program. When the matinee opens there will be music all along the line.

Can't the railroads be induced to offer a commodity rate in moving the legislative body? The companies ought to be willing to do something for a grateful constituency.

The wicked railroad pass has gone into history as a device of the devil, but the walking is still good, with but little danger of counterfeiting the tie pass.

Serving the state without pay, to gratify the whims of an erratic governor, is liable to produce friction and more or less heat under the color. Such is reform.

Will the comptroller of the currency advise an anxious constituency as to whether the game warden and all inspectors have saved the state enough money to pay for the extra session?

The primary law is as full of holes as a skimmer, and the legislature is expected to furnish the necessary repairs. The law is a travesty from start to finish and only needs testing to discover the fact.

With six months in the saddle, surrounded by a legislature ready to spit when the governor coughed, the amount of unfinished business ought to be nil. Will another six months' session clear it up? That all depends.

There's nothing like having a man at the helm. You always have the satisfaction of knowing that you are going somewhere, with no responsibility attached. We will either go to the senate or we won't, but what's the odds.

PRO AND CON.

The subject of vaccination is just now uppermost in the minds of many people and the supposition generally prevails that people must be vaccinated whether they will or no. This belief is the cause of uneasiness in the minds of many who dread the possible results of the remedy more than they do the disease.

The fact is that there is nothing compulsory about it, so far as state law is concerned, and the individual is at liberty to exercise his own judgment on the matter. Some eight years ago a number of the state institutions were threatened with infectious diseases and the Board of Health ordered the pupils at the State School for the Blind, vaccinated. The order was not carried out as many parents objected and their wishes were observed.

In another part of the paper will be found a communication from Dr. Roberts, giving the anti-vaccine side of the case and some precautionary measures, which will be read with interest. Dr. Roberts suffered for seven years from vaccine poison and has occasion to write with some feeling on the subject.

NOTHING POLITICAL.

The fact that Congressman Cooper is to deliver his lecture on his recent trip to the Orient, for the benefit of the Cargill Memorial church, has suggested the possibility of their being some political significance in the movement and injustice is likely to result to both Mr. Cooper and the society.

While the suspicion is natural, because a number of post-office appointments are soon to be made, yet, in the case of Janesville, it is destitute of foundation, for at this writing there is only one candidate for the position and the present incumbent will doubtless succeed himself without opposition.

It is only fair to Mr. Cooper to say that in accepting the invitation he was careful to state that under no consideration would the question of politics be mentioned.

Mr. Cooper is a very entertaining speaker and he is full of the subject which has engaged his attention for the past six months. The church officials believed that the people would appreciate an opportunity to hear him and that the building fund of the new church would be aided by extending the congressman an invitation. The lecture is meritorious and the occasion destitute of political significance.

GET IN LINE.

This, in substance, is the spirit of the order just issued by the governor for a special session of the legislature. The call is for the fourth of December and the session is likely to last for an indefinite period.

The governor has captured everything in sight, in the way of offices, but not satisfied with this he now proposes to whip the legislature in line and if that body refuses to do his bidding he will retain the office of governor, and see to it that the interests of the dear people are not sacrificed.

For pure and unadulterated gull, this caps the climax, and it remains to be seen whether the representatives of the people are men, or simply puppets.

An extra session of the legislature at the present time is a needless piece of extravagance. It will cost the state thousands of dollars and prove a hardship to many members who can ill afford the time and expense involved.

The legislature gave a continuous performance from January until June and it is not surprising, with the fool measures, which occupied much of the time, that some mistakes were made.

The call for the extra session, includes ten counts, which have already appeared in the news columns, but the pith of the whole thing is summed up in the eleventh commandment, which reads:

"To receive any communications transmitted to the legislature with respect to the office of Governor or the office of United States Senator."

If this means anything but a threat, it is not apparent from the reading. The double office is now held by the governor, an honor which is seldom conferred upon a single individual. He has never accepted the office of United States Senator, and he don't propose to, unless permitted to dictate as to who shall succeed him in the state office.

This fact is generally recognized by both friend and foe and this is the proposition with which the legislature is confronted.

The people of Wisconsin are a long-suffering people, but the time is ripe for a revolt against this sort of dictatorship. This dog in the manger spirit is an insult to the intelligence of the state. The people managed to live in peace and harmony for half a century before this disturber gained a foothold on the carpet.

Statistics do not indicate much of an increase in the feeble-minded population, and many sane people, who have been blindly following a magnetic leader, have become weary, and are dropping out of the procession.

The state has been humiliated for the past four years by submitting to the dictatorship of a self-appointed guardian. The people have passed the age of childhood and are able to stand alone. This God-given right should now be exercised, and the governor, infatuated by success, should be given to understand that his services can be dispensed with.

PRESS COMMENT.

No Wonder He's Insistent.
Milwaukee Sentinel: Having admittedly spent $65,000 to get votes Mr. Hearst is naturally a little insistent on a recount.

Only a Committee Meeting.
Sheboygan Journal: Just eighty citizens organized the recent "revolution" in the Isle of Pines. After all, it was nothing but a committee meeting.

Cupid and Tuberculosis.
Racine Journal: If a young man engages to marry a girl and later finds she has tuberculosis he must still fulfill his contract or pay damages. But if the girl finds her young man has tuberculosis she can probably do as she pleases.

After His Gracious Offer.
Chicago Record-Herald: There is talk of selecting a Chicago man for president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. Having graciously offered to work for half what he has been paying himself, McCurdy will probably wonder why there should be any further talk of a change in his office.

Source of Pride Anyway.
La Crosse Leader-Press: Wisconsin

lost two of the three big games this year but fought hard in each game and finishes the year in better standing than for four years. Compared with its recent predecessors, the Wisconsin team of 1905 was one to be proud of.

From the Madison Journal.

To the Editor: "No 23" as slang means "You are out of it," "no good," "get away back," or "anything like that." It comes from the race-track. The limit of entry is 23, hence "23" isn't in it. It isn't very good slang, because the meaning is not very clear to every one.—New York, October 3, SPORT.

Just One Thing Overlooked.

Milwaukee News: There is only one thing Governor La Follette overlooked in his call on the subjects to be considered by the special session and that was a measure to provide that the languishing Uncle Ike morning organ of "reform" be made the official state paper. Still a shift politician like the governor may provide for that yet under one of his other subjects. The organ's appetite for pa is still keen.

Trifling That People May Resent.

Milwaukee Journal: Two things strike the impartial observer as a result of the governor's long months of silence and of his summons to the legislature. One is that Governor La Follette may have over-reached himself in his efforts to promote his personal advancement and to maintain control over the politics of the state. Governor La Follette is not absolutely necessary to the people of the state either as governor or as senator, just as no other man is absolutely necessary in those positions. There are other men in Wisconsin who can represent the state at Washington and who can also serve as governor at Madison. What the people want is more the right kind of representation than representation by any particular man. Another thing is that the senatorship is not a matter to be trifled with. It is not the plaything of any man. If Governor La Follette has been indulging in horseplay with the people over the senatorship, he will be made to feel the people's resentment.

Mask for Political Play.

Milwaukee News: By proclamation of Governor La Follette the legislature of Wisconsin has been called to meet in extraordinary session, Dec. 4, to amend various laws passed by it at the regular session and "to receive any communication transmitted to the legislature with regard to the office of governor or the office of United States senator." The legislature has been called to meet upon the day that congress will assemble at Washington. Mr. La Follette is governor of Wisconsin and United States senator-elect. He cannot perform the duties of both offices. What, then, does he purpose to do? It is obvious that the legislation that is contemplated in his proclamation is designed to mask his political play. If La Follette were now playing a game of politics, he would hardly have waited to call the legislature to meet in special session in December. If there be need for amending laws passed by the legislature last winter it is singular indeed that the need for amending them has just presented itself to Governor La Follette. The legislature was in session all winter and did not adjourn until late in the month of June, in fact summer had been entered upon. Governor La Follette was at the helm. He stood in the breach to see that the legislature should do its duty. It passed the bills that he submitted to it. The people were given to understand that owing to the governor's zeal and alertness laws had been enacted to complete the "work" that he had begun when he first entered the executive office. The measures that he now funds are defective were considered and debated. They had the mark of his approval. He dictated them and they were passed as he wanted them. Now he comes forward and declares that the legislature made a mess of its work and that many of the important bills passed by it and approved by him are defective and need amending. All these things being done by La Follette as he wished them done, if the laws are defective whose is the fault?

Too Much Hospitality.

A soldier lately come over with Gen. Moore was asked if he had met with much hospitality in Holland. "Oh, yes," he replied, "I met with far too much of it. I was in the hospital nearly all the time I was there."

Jerry Sullivan passed away last evening at nine o'clock at his home on Emmett street. The deceased was thirty-two years of age and leaves to mourn his death, a mother, sister, Mrs. McCormick of Michigan, and three brothers, Dennis, John and Dan Sullivan of this city.

Seymour Burdick

Funeral services over the remains of the late Seymour Burdick, who resided near Arion, were held this morning at ten-thirty o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Rev. Fr. James McGinley officiating. The pallbearers were Peter Skelley, Henry Meyer, David Harn and John Grant. Burial was in Mount Olivet.

Mrs. Bridget Casey

The funeral of the late Mrs. Bridget Casey was held this morning at nine o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Dean E. M. McGinley officiated and the pallbearers were grandsons of the deceased—Henry Casey, George Casey, Thomas Casey, William McCue, John McCue and James Casey. Interment was in Mount Olivet.

CURRENT ITEMS

Arm Badly Fractured: In a fall from a hay rack where he had been playing, the eight-year-old son of Fred H. Bonowitz fractured the large bone of his left arm between the elbow and the wrist. The bones protruded through the flesh and the little boy suffered intense pain until the arrival of a physician. He showed much fortitude, however, and eventually to assist the doctor in setting the broken bones.

To Wed Nov. 23: E. K. Hubbard, employed at the Eclipse plant in Beloit, and Miss Cummings of this city are to be married at the home of the prospective bride on Nov. 24. They will go to housekeeping on

TOOTH TALKS

Have you ever noticed the "crook" or "glare" of some people's new store teeth?

No need for that if the dentist is able to select a shade of teeth to harmonize with your complexion.

It takes natural gifts of distinguishing delicate shades of color to make a good dentist.

Some dentists have this skill. Then, you may have noticed in an instant that someone has FALSE teeth.

Something about the appearance gave it away.

Some dentists have the ability to hide all these things which jar the sensitive eye.

The NATURAL must be imitated in a high degree, and no novice can get these results in dentistry.

If you must have new teeth see DR. RICHARDS, who can give you the benefit of 15 years' patient study to hide that ARTIFICIAL LOOK.

OSCAR NOWLAN NOT A CANDIDATE

PRESENT P. M. SAYS HE DOES NOT DESIRE REAPPOINTMENT.

WHO WILL BE APPOINTED?

V. P. Richardson, Col. E. O. Kimberley and Charles L. Valentine Are Mentioned.

Matters politically as regards the postmaster of Janesville have become seriously complicated by the announcement of Oscar P. Nowlan, the present postmaster, that he is not a candidate for reappointment. For eight years Mr. Nowlan has served Janesville as its postmaster and his announcement that he no longer cares for the office comes as a surprise to his friends in the city who were not notified of his intentions.

For Eight Years Mr. Nowlan has been postmaster of Janesville for the past eight years. Until the announcement of his determination to decline reappointment no candidates have been mentioned. This morning papers of recommendation for Col. E. O. Kimberley and former Assemblyman Charles L. Valentine are being passed about the city and are freely signed by friends of both men.

Formal Announcement Mr. Nowlan made the formal announcement he was not a candidate only after friends of Mr. Kimberley and Mr. Valentine came to him yesterday afternoon stating that they had heard rumors that he was about to withdraw as a candidate. Mr. Nowlan's statement that he was not an applicant for the position immediately started the petitions for the other candidates.

Told Cooper As late as last spring Mr. Nowlan notified Mr. Cooper that he would not be a candidate for reappointment if there was any contest. Until he made his formal announcement yesterday it was not known that there was any other choice in the matter than Mr. Nowlan. Mr. Nowlan has been postmaster since 1898 and probably would have been reappointed but for his own act of withdrawing.

Richardson Mentioned Speculations as to his possible successor bring out the name of Victor P. Richardson, Col. E. O. Kimberley and Charles L. Valentine. It is safe to say that with Mr. Nowlan out of the race Congressman Cooper will appoint some good La Follette republican to fill the vacant office. Mr. Nowlan's term expires next January.

Was His Opponent On peculiar feature of the present contest is that Victor P. Richardson who is most favorably mentioned for the office was the La Follette candidate for congress against Mr. Cooper in 1902 and was only defeated by nomination by the ardent work of Mr. Cooper's friends, who were at that time all stalwarts. Mr. Cooper is to speak here on Monday evening next under the auspices of the Methodist church. The attempt on the part of his friends to make the meeting a semi-political one has failed utterly owing to the publicity of their scheme as given by the press.

Contest to Come One feature which may have caused Mr. Nowlan from the contest for the office is the fact that he has always been considered a strong stalwart and with the possibility of Mr. G. Jeffris becoming a candidate for congress against Mr. Cooper his position would be a peculiar one.

As to Beloit It is also said here today that strong pressure is being brought to Beloit to have him withdraw his name as a candidate thus leaving the field clear for Cooper to appoint La Follette republicans to the two offices and uniting the conservative support to Jeffris.

BIG TRANSFER MADE IN THE REAL ESTATE

Twenty-Two Thousand Dollars Paid for a Valuable Tract of Land in City.

With the transfer of the old Dr. Mitchell homestead on West Milwaukee street to the Central Land Company one of the large tracts of the old homesteads of the city passes into the class of prospective commercial blocks. The transfer was made through the P. L. Stevens agency and the property cost the Central Land Company twenty-two thousand dollars. It is one of the largest land transactions that has occurred in many years.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD FROM STARVATION WAS DAUGHTER OF ENGLISH MISSIONARIES

Had Lived in Rock County Since 1872 and Husband Died Last January.

Mrs. Serena Ann Parkyn-Shaler, who was found dead from willful starvation in her home at Indian Ford last Saturday, was born in England 1840 and crossed the ocean three times while a mere child. Her parents spent three years in Jamaica as missionaries, returned to the United States and located in Albany, N. Y. In 1868 they removed to Michigan and came to Jefferson in 1872. Her father died at Jefferson May 4, 1874, and her mother in Minnesota in 1892. In 1896 she married C. E. Shaler and their only son died in 1875. The death of her husband occurred in January, 1905.

WRECK AT THE FORT BLOCKED MAIN LINE

Paper Train Was Late Two Hours—Wrecker with Crew Called from Janesville.

Through an open switch on a side track at Fort Atkinson this morning several freight cars were derailed and tipped over onto the main line of the North-Western road, blocking traffic between Janesville and Milwaukee and Fond du Lac for two hours. Four flat cars and two cars loaded with sugar beets were in the wreck and the wrecker with a crew was called from this city to clear the line. As a result of the blockade the passenger train from Milwaukee, which should have arrived here about eight o'clock, did not come until ten and the morning Milwaukee papers were not delivered until about half-past ten. The train leaving here at 6:50 for Fond du Lac was also delayed. Among the Janesville men who were called were E. H. Zickler, general foreman at the roundhouse; George Rood, foreman of the wrecker; and Herman Schumacher, head car-repairer, and a number of his helpers. Engineer M. A. Crowley and Fireman E. J. Gruel manned the engine which drew the special.

HARRY L. MAXFIELD ELECTED PRESIDENT

Of the Weyher Mfg. Co. of Whitewater Which Has Just Been Incorporated—Makes Express and Milk Wagons.

Harry L. Maxfield of this city has been elected president of the Weyher Mfg. Co. of Whitewater, incorporated this week with a capital of $35,000, to take over the business of Weyher & Son. The concern manufactures three-wheeled milk and express delivery wagons and was started ten years ago in a small way by Theodore Weyher who now retires from the enterprise. His son, Edward T. Weyher, is secretary, treasurer and general manager of the plant and L. F. Roe is vice president. The plant employs from 35 to 40 men and does an annual business throughout the north-west amounting to something over $65,000. At one time or another there has been some talk of removing it to Janesville, but nothing has come of it.

Thomas McGill, Accidentally Killed at Lone Rock, Wis. Sun of Mr. and Mrs. Martin McGill.

Thomas McGill, whose death in an accident at Lone Rock, Wis., was recorded in the Late Telegraphic News in the Gazette yesterday, was the son of former Janesville residents. His father, Martin McGill, lived in the second ward prior to the civil war and enlisted in the Union army from this city. At the close of the conflict he returned here and was married, his bride being a domestic in the home of the late J. B. Crosby. Mr. and Mrs. McGill went immediately to Avoca and made their home there. It will be recalled that young McGill, whose home is at Clayed, and W. J. Hood of Spring Green were driving a traction engine over a small bridge and the structure, collapsing under the weight of the machine, pitched them into five feet of water, where McGill was crushed beneath the wheel.

public service. It is the belief of the commission that the larger number who apply for the situations and take the examinations, the larger and better will be the resultant eligible list and the consequence will be a better personnel when the effect of the civil service law is felt. The preliminary work of the commission is fast nearing completion. This consists of investigating the work to be done by the holder of each kind of position in the state service and ascertaining the lines along which an applicant for a particular position should be examined. Much of this work will never have to be done again as it has been done thoroughly in the beginning.

Yost Is a Master of Football

University of Michigan Coach a Wizard in Developing Teams. Talks on "East Versus West" Question --- His Rules For Success.

Coach Yost of the University of Michigan football team is looked on in many quarters as the greatest gridiron strategist in America. He has produced so many championship teams that the colleges of the west and middle west have almost given up hope of defeating Michigan while Yost remains at Ann Arbor.

No matter how unpromising the material given Yost to work on at the opening of a season, he is certain, before a month has passed to have on the field a team capable of holding its own against all comers. At the climax of the season his men are invariably in championship form.

Yost's teams are always heavy, but at the same time they are fast. He seems to have a wonderful faculty of making big men active on their feet. "Hurry up" is Yost's golden text for players, and hence his nickname of "Hurry Up" Yost.

This season the Michigans look up as the coming champions of 1905. The deciding game will be played in Chicago Nov. 30 against the University of Chicago. The Windy Cityites are confident in the belief that they have the best chance in many years to defeat Michigan. Coach Stagg has Eckersall, the best quarterback in the country, and that may make Michigan's task unusually difficult in the Thanksgiving day game.

Yost in speaking of football east and west recently said:

"Eastern managers and athletes recognize Michigan's powers in athletics and in football especially, but the undergraduates do not know that the sun doesn't set just beyond the western bank of the Hudson. One of them told me in Boston that he supposed there were 500 students in Michigan university. He rather suspected I was laying it on when I replied that there were that many in some of our classes.

"I added that the five big colleges of the west had larger attendance than the five largest eastern universities. I closed him up completely with the statement that Chicago and Stanford could buy and sell Harvard, Yale and Princeton.

"As to football, there's some great playing in the west this fall. I cannot say where Michigan will land. But the team that beats us will be the best that ever stepped in shoe leather."

Some of Yost's maxims for football players are as follows:

Hurry up.
Hurry up and be the first man to line up.
Hurry up all the time. Football is not a slow or lazy man's game.

Hurry up. Football is a game of hurry, hurry, hurry.

Hurry up if you are behind in any play. Then is the time you need most to hurry. Hurry up and get into every play. Football is played by eleven men. Spectators are not wanted on the field; their place is in the grand stand.

Hurry up and be the first man down the field on a punt or kick off.

Hurry up and help your own runner with his back, never let him go it alone.

Hurry up and kick the ball. No one can play the game unless he is with the ball all the time.

Hurry up and fall on every fumble either by your own side or an opponent. This is very important.

Hurry up and block your man hard when you should block.

Hurry up when given the ball for a punt. You must hurry or the opponents will be all over you in an instant.

Hurry up and learn the signals. You cannot play a fast game unless you know them instantly.

Hurry up and learn to control your temper. If you cannot do this you had better quit the game.

Hurry up when you are about to be tackled. Put on more "go." Don't slow up, for this is the time of all others when you need all your speed.

Hurry up and get versatile. Do not be a machine player in your individual position.

Hurry up and score in the first few minutes of the game, before your opponents realize what is going on.

Hurry up and play football. Do not stop for slugging prevents any man from playing the team play that he should.

Hurry up even if you are tired; do not slow down. If you cannot stand the pace get yourself in better condition. Football is a strenuous game.

Sporting Talk.

Fitzsimmons Should Best O'Brien In Coming Bout. Chance Now a Manager.

The coming bout between Bob Fitzsimmons and "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien is the leading pugilistic topic of the hour. Despite his age, Fitzsimmons should be able to "hold O'Brien safe" throughout. Fitz still retains his strength and speed and is the marvel of the fighting world.

Fitz and O'Brien fought six rounds at Philadelphia on July 23, 1904. Jack, accounts stated, had the better of the milling during the first half of the contest, and Bob came strong toward the end and had Jack practically out the latter part of the sixth round, when the police interfered.

Another "counting champion" has fallen by the wayside, and the man who is to defeat James J. Jeffries has yet to be brought forward. Delaney's new champion, Al Kaufmann, was knocked out by "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien in seventeen fast rounds on the Pacific coast recently, and for several months at least he will have no reputation on which to base a claim for a fight with Marvin Hart. Kaufmann was much heavier than his opponent, but was woefully deficient in boxing skill, and it took this tryout with a clever man to prove it.

"PHILADELPHIA JACK" O'BRIEN, MATCHED TO MEET FITZSIMMONS.

Kaufmann may be a coming champion, but he will have to learn a great deal before he becomes one. True, he is very young, not yet twenty years of age, but he has been boxing for some time and should have learned enough to at least keep away from such a dangerous foe as the easterner.

Kaufmann had all the advantage in weight, strength and reach. He is reported to have a jab that would prove dangerous to any opponent, and he seems to have been able to keep O'Brien away for quite awhile, but he fell far short of the championship degree and will not be heard from until he can begin at the bottom and work his way up.

Baseball fans in Chicago were pleased to read recently that Frank Chance has consented to assume the management of the Nationals for the next three seasons because the illness of former Manager Selee does not permit him to resume his duties as the manager of the team.

Chance comes nearer to filling the place in the hearts of Chicago fans left vacant by "Cap" Anson than any other ball player who has represented the city. He is almost as great a batsman as the "old man" was and perhaps makes up the difference in their batting strength by his speed as a first baseman and a base runner.

Chance is well liked by all his men, and his managerial methods have earned him the respect of players and public.

Terry Is Tamed.
Terry McGovern is reported to be tame as a kitten since his victory over Tommy Murphy, and the signs all indicate that he has abandoned his barbaric ways of the past for the straight and narrow.

Nick Is Anxious.
Nick Hollywood, Coalville, Pa., challenges all boxers who make 115-118 pounds. His manager is Hugh M. Boyle.

Blind Boys Who Play Football

Sightless Team of the Kentucky Institute a Wonderful Feature of Athletic World --- Long Schedule of Games --- Defeated Y. M. C. A.

The millions who have at various times watched with most intense and partisan interest the struggle for supremacy of two football teams, noted the tricks of the game, the bulldog tenacity, the giantlike strength, the cunning and at times ferociousness of these gladiators of the gridiron, will find some difficulty in grasping and accepting the statement that in Louisville there are eleven blind boys who play the game for all there is in it. These boys are just as cunning as their "seeing" opponents, as scientific as their needs demand, full of pluck and endurance and splendid courage and at all times as keenly alive to what is going on around them as though they were gifted with sight.

To the uninitiated this seems impossible, but there is reason in plenty for its not being impossible. First of all, the inmates of the Kentucky Institute for the Blind are just like any other boys, with the same instincts, the same love for fun and the same wholesome desire for supremacy. In a general way they are absolutely unconscious of the fact that they do not see, because nature, having denied them vision, as we understand it, has turned their ten fingers, their ears and every muscle of their bodies into so many eyes whereby they may have vision after their kind. Strange as it may seem, blind boys actually believe they do things just a little bit better than those known as "seeing" boys.

Not only are these boys of the blind institute well versed in football, but they understand and actually play the great national game of baseball. In addition to this, they go in for all field games, and at the last summer meet they beat the Louisville Y. M. C. A. track team handily, scoring fifty-three points to their opponents' thirty-seven.

It is nearly four years since any certain attempt was made to develop the "boy" in the blind boys of the institute. They are by nature playful, anxious for all kinds of sports, but not knowing just how to go about it.

During the first year the task was not an easy one. Though the boys were anything but stupid, the very contrary being true, those who have played football and watched the game from bleachers and grand stands know its difficulties and can therefore fully appreciate just what these blind would be athletes had to contend with.

The following year the thing was easier, and during the season of 1904 the football eleven made a most remarkable record, playing three games, winning one and tying two. This season they arranged a schedule running up to Thanksgiving, and every game has been with a team averaging from eight to fifteen pounds heavier to the man.

Some of the plays made by these blind boys are really little short of wonderful. In rushing the ball they are particularly strong. It is only in defensive tactics that they evidence any notable weakness, and their inability to see as their opponents see is then hardest to overcome.

"On offensive work," said Coach Gregory, Jr., "I honestly think that my boys are vastly superior to any team of even weight. How do I account for that? These boys cannot see their opponents coming at them with blood in their eyes, so to speak, and they are not therefore seized with any feeling of shrinking or of fear of injury. They literally plunge blindly ahead, and they generally get there."

MIDDIES UNDER THEIR OWN CODE

Naval Academy Rules Are Set at Naught by Illegal Regulations.

COVER UP THE VIOLATIONS

Men on Duty Permit Students to Be Absent to Attend Fights, Which Are Governed in Every Detail by Unwritten Laws.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 22.—The fact that the midshipmen of the United States naval academy are governed by a "code" of laws in flagrant violation of the regulations of the academy was brought out Wednesday in the first session of the court martial of Midshipman Minor Meriwether.

It was the violation of this illegal "code" which led to the quarrel between Meriwether and Midshipman James R. Branch, Jr. The quarrel was followed by a fist fight in which Branch received injuries which, it is charged, caused his death.

The death of Midshipman Branch under such circumstances called attention to the existence at the naval academy of an unwritten code governing the student body, outside the authoritative regulations and in violation of them.

Under the "code" every detail of these fights is fixed, the midshipmen on duty abstaining from reporting them, and excusing from formation those connected with them.

Are Governed by Code.

These facts were clearly brought out both by the judge advocate and in the cross-examination by Lieutenant Commander Robinson for the defense. The witnesses included Branch's roommate, the referee and timekeeper of the contest, and all the four seconds were examined about all the circumstances of the fight, the connection of the "code," and their ideas of their duty under the regulations.

Midshipman A. W. Fitch, who referred the fight which was followed by Branch's death, stated he had officiated in nineteen such contests and Midshipman McKilrick testified that he had taken part in nine. Detailed accounts were given of the arrangements by which midshipmen on duty acquiesced in absences without leave and other derelictions in order that the fights might go on, and the testimony also showed that although frequently severe injuries resulted from these fights and the recipients often had to be taken to the hospital nothing further was ever heard of them.

Hazing at the Academy.

This the defense brought out on cross examination, it being evidently intended to show that the naval academy authorities also winked at the code and the prearranged fights under it.

Interesting side lights on hazing, or "running," as it is called at the academy, developed from the testimony of one of the midshipmen. Meriwether had been generally disliked, he said, because he was too "ratty," that is, it was explained, that he did not abide by the rules laid down for the government of the lower classmen.

Some of these rules were that he should never enter "lovers' lane," an academy walk, that he should turn all corners at right angles, should not look at an upper class man, and should answer most respectfully when addressed by one of them; that he must never touch the table nor ask for anything during a meal, and under no circumstances "fuss," that is, to be in the society of young women.

Determined to Fight.

These rules and many others are contained in that part of the "code" relating to the government of under classmen. Branch had been one of the midshipmen who, according to the testimony, determined to make life "not worth living" for Meriwether, because he would not abide by these rules, and from that the enmity arose.

The first witness was Midshipman James P. Van de Carr, a classmate of Branch, and who sat next to Meriwether at table. This midshipman said that shortly before the fight Meriwether told him while at the table that Branch was one of the few men in the world that he hated, and that he had determined to make him fight if he had any fight in him. He said further that Branch had tried to make his life miserable for him while at the academy, and he, Meriwether, was of the kind that would not stand it. The next night, Van de Carr testified, Meriwether told those at the table that it was all fixed, as Branch had challenged him to fight.

HOLDS REDUCTIONS IMPROPER

Soap Should Be Classified for Carriage in Less Than Carload Lots in Its Relation to Other Articles of Same Character.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 23.—The authority of the interstate commerce commission was upheld in a decision filed by United States Judge Thompson in a case brought by Procter & Gamble against the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, the Pennsylvania, the Big Four and the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroads.

The judgment of the interstate commerce commission in so far as quantity of goods affected is concerned was one of the most important conclusions of that body. Before the protest against freight rates filed by Procter & Gamble with the commission the railroads listed car loads of soap for the purpose of classification in the sixth class and lots less than car load lots in the fourth class and the lesser bulk to 20 per cent less than third class.

Declares Rates Are Wrong.

This reduction in classification brought out the protest upon which the matter went to the interstate commerce commission. The commission held that the reduction in classification of carload lots was proper, but that the reductions of fractions of car loads was improper and ordered the railroads to desist on that point. The railroads refused.

The attorney general ordered District Attorney McPherson to bring suit against the offending common carriers. This was done. The result is the interstate commerce commission is sustained and injunction issues against the increased rates on fractional lots.

Text of the Decision.

The court held the burden of proof rested on the defendants to show that the facts are not as found by the interstate commerce commission and that the change of classification complained of was not in violation of the act to regulate commerce. Procter & Gamble claimed the reclassification gave undue and unreasonable preference or advantage to other descriptions of traffic and subjected common soap in less than car load lots to undue prejudice and disadvantage and the classification resulted in unlawful discrimination in less than car load lots, against localities, producers, shippers, dealers and consumers.

Judge Thompson in the decision declared: "The classification of soap for carriage in less than car load lots should be based upon its relations to other articles for carriage in less than car load lots, and not upon its relation to soap for carriage in car load lots."

MITCHELL IS GIVEN NEW POST

Alleged Heretic Changed to Graduate Department in College.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 23.—The trustees of Boston university have announced the appointment of Professor Hinchley G. Mitchell as instructor of Semitic languages and literature in the graduate school of the university. Dr. Mitchell's appointment will extend until June 6, 1906. Recently Dr. Mitchell was removed from his chair in the theological school of the university by the board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church for alleged heretical interpretation of the scriptures. Resolutions were passed by the trustees commending Dr. Mitchell for his twenty-two years of faithful services to the university.

CHAPTER II.

THE outer room was crowded from end to end and the atmosphere reeked with unpleasant dampness. Only behind the little table before the corner's desk was there breathing space, and we sank into our seats at the table with a sigh of relief.

One never realizes how many newspapers there are in New York until one attends an important criminal case—that brings their people out in droves and swarms. The reporters took up most of the space in this small room. Paper and pencils were everywhere in evidence, and in one corner there was a man with a camera stationed, determined, I suppose, to get a photograph of our client should he be called to the stand, since none could be obtained in any other way.

I saw Singleton, the district attorney, come in and sit down near the corner, and then the jury filed in from their room and took their seats. I examined them, man by man, with some little anxiety, but they all seemed intelligent and fairly well to do. Mr. Rogers was looking over their names, and he checked them off carefully as the clerk called the roll. Then he handed the list up to the corner with a little nod.

"Go ahead," he said. "They're all right I guess—they look all right."

"It's a good jury," replied the corner as he took the paper. "Better than usual. Are you ready, Mr. Singleton?"

"Yes," said the district attorney. "Oh, wait a minute," he added, and he got up and came down to our table.

"You're going to put Miss Holladay on the stand, I suppose?"

"And our junior looked around the room. "Not if I can help it."

"I don't see how you can help it. An alibi's the only thing that can save her from being found guilty."

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," retorted Mr. Rogers. "I think the case against her will soon die of inanition."

"Oh, very well," And Singleton abruptly went back to his desk, biting his mustache thoughtfully. He had made something of a reputation, since his election a year before, as a solver of abstruse criminal problems and had secured a conviction in two or three capital cases which had threatened for a time to buffet the police. He evidently scented something of the same kind here or he would have intrusted the case to one of his assistants.

It might be added that, while his successes had made him immensely popular with the multitude, there had been about one or two of them a hint of unprofessional conduct, which had made his brethren of the bar look rather askance at him.

He nodded to the corner after a moment, the room was called to order and the first witness summoned.

It was Rogers, the confidential clerk. I knew Rogers, of course; had talked with him often in a business way and had the highest respect for him. He had been with Mr. Holladay much longer than I had been with Graham and Royce and had, as Mr. Graham had pointed out, an unimpeachable reputation.

There were the usual preliminaries—name, age, residence, and so on, Corner Goldberg asking the questions. He was a really good cross examiner and soon came to the core of the matter.

"What is the position of your desk in Mr. Holladay's office?" he asked.

"There is an outer office for the clerks; opening from that a smaller room, where my desk is placed. Opening from my room was Mr. Holladay's private office."

"Had Mr. Holladay's office any other door?"

"No, sir."

"Could entrance be had by the windows?"

"The windows open on the street side of the building. We occupy a part of the eighth floor."

"The fire escapes?"

"Are at the back of the building—there are none on the street side—nothing but a sheer wall."

"So that any one entering or leaving the private office must necessarily pass by your desk?"

"Necessarily, yes, sir."

"Could any one pass without your seeing him?"

"No, sir; that would be quite impossible."

The corner leaned back in his chair. There was one point settled.

"Now, Mr. Rogers," he said, "will you kindly tell us, in your own way and with as much detail as possible, exactly what happened at your office shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon?"

I moved, since that Rogers was deeply moved. His face was very white, he moistened his lips nervously from time to time, and his hands grasped convulsively the arms of his chair. Plainly the task before him was far from an agreeable one.

"Well, sir," he began, "we had a very busy day yesterday and were at the office considerably later than usual, but by 5 o'clock we had closed up for the day, and all the other clerks, with the exception of the office boy, had gone home. I had made some notes from Mr. Holladay's dictation and had returned to my desk to arrange them when the outer door opened, and Mr. Holladay's daughter came in. She asked me whether her father was engaged, and upon my saying no, she entered the inner door and entered his office."

"She remained, I should think, about ten minutes, then she came out again, walked rapidly past without looking at me and, I suppose, left the building. I finished arranging my notes and then entered Mr. Holladay's office to ask if he had any further instructions for me, and I found him lying forward on his desk with a knife sticking in his neck and the blood spurting out. I summoned aid, but he died without regaining consciousness. I should say he was practically dead when I found him."

"I felt rather than heard the little stir which ran through the room. There was an indefinable horror in the story and in the conclusion to which it inevitably led."

"Now, let us go back a moment," said the corner as Rogers stopped and mopped his forehead feverishly. "I want the jury to understand your story thoroughly. Mr. Holladay had been dictating to you?"

"Yes."

"And was quite well?"

"Yes; as well as usual. He'd been suffering with indigestion for some time past."

"Still he was able to attend to business?"

"Oh, yes, sir. There was nothing at all serious in his illness."

"You then left his office and returned to your own. How long had you been there before the outer door opened?"

"Not over five minutes."

"And who was it entered?"

"Miss Frances Holladay, the daughter of my employer."

"You're quite sure? You know her well?"

"Very well. I've known her for many years. She often drove to the office in the evening to take her father home. I supposed that was what she came for yesterday."

"You looked at her attentively?"

Rogers hitched impatiently in his chair.

"I glanced at her as I always do," he said. "I didn't stare."

"But you're quite sure it was Miss Holladay?"

"Absolutely sure, sir. Do you suppose I'd make an assertion like that if I wasn't absolutely sure?"

"No," said the corner soothingly. "No, I don't suppose any such thing. Not for a moment, Mr. Rogers, only I want the jury to see how certain the identification is. Shall I proceed?"

"Go ahead, sir," said Rogers. "I'll try to hold myself together a little better, sir."

"I can see what a strain this is for you," said the corner kindly. "And I'll spare you as much as I can. Now, after Miss Holladay entered the inner office, how long did she remain there?"

"About ten minutes, I should say. Not longer than that, certainly."

"Did you hear any sound of conversation or any unusual noise of any kind?"

"No, sir. It would have been a very unusual noise to be audible. Mr. Holladay's office has heavy walls and a double door which completely shut off all sounds from within."

"Miss Holladay then came out?"

"Yes, sir."

"And walked past you?"

"Yes, sir; walked past me rapidly."

"Did you not think that peculiar?"

"Why, sir, she didn't often stop to speak to me. I was busy, and so thought nothing particularly about it."

"Did you notice her face? Did she seem perturbed?"

"No, sir; I didn't notice. I just glanced up and bowed. In fact, I didn't see her face at all, for she had lowered her veil."

"Her veil?" repeated the corner. "You hadn't mentioned that she wore a veil."

"No, sir; when she came into the office she had lifted it up over her hat—she knew how women do."

"Yes—so you saw her face distinctly when she entered?"

"Yes, sir."

"But when she went out she had lowered her veil. Was it a heavy one?"

"Why, sir," the witness hesitated, "just an ordinary veil; I should say."

"But still heavy enough to conceal her face?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

The corner nodded. "Now, Mr. Rogers, how long a time elapsed after the departure of the woman before you went back into the inner office?"

"Not more than three or four minutes. I thought perhaps Mr. Holladay was getting ready to accompany his daughter, and I didn't wish to detain him."

"And you found him, as you say, lying forward on his desk with a knife in his throat and the blood spurting out. Did you recognize the knife?"

"Yes, sir. It was his knife—a knife he kept lying on his desk to sharpen pencils with and erase and so on."

"Sharp, was it?"

"It had one long blade, very sharp, sir."

"The corner picked up a knife that was lying on the desk before him. "Is this the knife?" he asked.

Rogers looked at it carefully. "That's the knife, sir," he said, and it was passed to the jury. When they had finished with it, Mr. Rogers and I examined it. It was an ordinary one-bladed erasing knife with ivory handle. It was open, the blade being about two inches and a half in length, and, as I soon convinced myself, very sharp indeed.

"Will you describe Mr. Holladay's position?" continued the corner.

"He was lying outstretched on the desk, with his arms outstretched and his head to one side."

"And there was a great deal of blood?"

"Oh, a great deal! Some one apparently had attempted to check it, for a little distance away there was a handkerchief soaked in blood."

The corner picked up a handkerchief and handed it to the witness.

"Is that the handkerchief?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," said Rogers, after a moment.

"Is it a man's or a woman's handkerchief?"

"Oh, a woman's, undoubtedly!"

The jury examined it, and so did we. It was a small square of fine cambric, with no mark that I could see, soaked through and through with blood—unquestionably a woman's handkerchief. Then Rogers told the rest of the story—how he had summoned aid and informed the police.

"Now, Mr. Rogers," said the corner, when he had finished, "there is one point more. Has there been anything in your knowledge of Mr. Holladay or his business to suggest the idea of suicide?"

"Nothing whatever, sir," he said positively. "His business was prospering, he was happy and contented—why, he was planning for a trip abroad with his daughter."

"Let us suppose for a moment," continued Goldberg, "that he did actually stab himself in his daughter's presence. What would you naturally expect her to do?"

Blunder of a Divorcee. In these days of many divorces a man should be careful about whom he marries—at least careful enough to see that he doesn't remarry a woman from whom he has been divorced. You Must Sleep.

If you cannot, it is due to an irritated or congested state of the brain, which will soon develop into nervous prostration. Nature demands sleep, and it is as important as food; it is a part of her building and sustaining process. This period of unconsciousness relaxes the mental and physical strain, and allows nature to restore exhausted vitality.

Dr. Miles' Nerve brings refreshing sleep, because it soothes the irritation and removes the congestion.

It is also a nerve builder; it nourishes and strengthens every nerve in your body, and creates energy in all the organs.

Nothing will give strength and vitality as surely and quickly as Dr. Miles' Nerve.

"During the past winter I had two attacks of La Grippe which left me very weak, and in bad condition. I was so nervous I could not sleep. My wife, after trying different remedies, went for a doctor. The doctor was a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nerve and she brought home a bottle. I had not slept for some time. After taking a few doses of Nerve the pain was not so severe, and I slept. I am now taking the second bottle, and am very much improved."

Home Health Club

By DAVID H. REEDER, Ph. D., M. D.
LA PORTE, IND.

OUR DAILY BREAD.

In volume one of the Home Health club books I have given some special instructions regarding wheat, wheat flour and various kinds of bread. The book was written in 1897, which was several years prior to the detailed experiments in digestion conducted by the government experiment stations in Maine and Minnesota. Nevertheless, nearly all of my arguments were proven correct. The principal error discovered, which was as great a surprise to the investigators as it was to me, was that from a standpoint of actual nutritive value and digestibility of all available products, the finest and whitest or what is known as straight-grade flour, is the cheapest. In the whole wheat flour, the starch granules, on account of their coarseness, cannot be so readily digested and as it does not keep so well as straight flour on account of the liability to fermentation, the fine white flour not only makes the most attractive loaf, but, as an exclusive diet, the most palatable and nutritious.

The following general summary of results and conclusions of experiments with bread, as given in the government reports, will not only be found interesting but valuable.

"In 18 digestion experiments with men it was found that white (straight-grade) flour was more completely digested than either graham or entire-wheat flour, and yielded a larger amount of digestible nutrients and available energy. While graham and entire wheat flours contain more total protein and fat and have a higher heat of combustion, they actually yield to the body, because of their lower digestibility, smaller percentages of digestible nutrients and available energy than the straight-grade flour.

"The same general differences in digestibility of the three grades of flour have been noted in experiments with hard northern spring wheats grown in Minnesota and Dakota, hard winter wheat grown in Oklahoma, and soft winter wheats grown in Michigan, Indiana and Oregon. In 54 digestion trials with both hard spring wheats and soft winter wheats in which six separate samples of wheat have been milled so as to procure the three types of flour—Graham, entire-wheat, and straight-grade—uniform results have been secured, and in all of the comparative trials the largest amounts of available nutrients and energy have been secured from the white flour.

"In the three digestion trials in which finely-pulverized bran was added to white flour in the same proportion as is removed in milling, it was found that the condition of the bran lowered the digestibility of the flour so that a smaller amount of digestible nutrients and available energy was obtained from the bran flour than from the white flour with which the bran was mixed. The flour containing finely-pulverized bran was more digestible than the coarsely granulated graham flour, but less digestible than the white flour. When bran was finely pulverized it failed to digest as completely as the white flour and, therefore, the addition of the bran lowered the food value to the flour.

"In three digestion trials in which finely-pulverized wheat germ was added to white flour in the same proportion as is removed in milling, it was found that the addition of the germ did not materially change the digestibility of the flour, and that the amount of total digestible nutrients and available energy in the germ flour and the white flour was about the same. There was no material gain in the total digestible nutrients by the addition of the germ to the white flour. The germ flour produced a smaller sized, sweeter, but less nutritious loaf than the white flour. Because of its fermentable character wheat germ is excluded from white flour.

"As to pecuniary value, a larger amount of available nutrients and energy can be produced at the usual prices for a given sum of money in the form of white, that is, straight-grade flour, than of any other flour. White flour contains the largest amount of available nutrients, and is not only the most digestible, but at present average market prices is also the cheapest kind of flour. It should not be inferred, however, that the use of entire-wheat and graham flour is to be discouraged. All the flours are very nutritious and economical foods, and experience has shown that they are wholesome as well. The differences in the amounts of total nutrients furnished the body by the various grades of flour are comparatively slight, all grades being quite thoroughly digested.

"In discussing the nutritive value of the breads made from the three kinds of flour, the quite noticeable effect of the breads upon the subjects is of interest. In the experiments reported all the subjects expressed a preference for the white bread. The graham bread, when it furnished the bulk of the ration for four days, produced a little discomfort, suggesting a slight irritation of the digestive tract. The ration of white bread and milk was less bulky in character and gave better results as to satiety and particularly as to ease of digestion. It should be borne in mind, however, that the tendency of the coarser flours to increase the peristaltic action of the intestines is often of undoubted value, particularly to persons of sedentary habit, and that their use as a laxative is in many cases extremely beneficial.

"The use of different grades of flour for bread making is a convenient means of increasing the variety of the diet. Because of varying requirements, a general rule can be laid down in the matter, and the extent to which the various grades of flour should be used must be determined largely by the individual himself.

"In this investigation the comparative digestibility of the phosphates and other mineral constituents was not determined, nor were the quantities consumed and the amounts and proportions excreted in the urine and feces studied. As yet entirely satisfactory methods have not been generally adopted for determining the digestibility of mineral constituents, and consequently there is a lack of definite knowledge concerning body requirements and the changes which are involved in the metabolism of the ash constituents of the diet. Considerable work along these lines is now being carried on by a number of investigators in France and elsewhere in Europe, and in the United States studies of the forms in which ash constituents, especially phosphorus, sulphur and other ash constituents, in food and excretory products, and various problems concerning the functions of these elements are being taken up in connection with the nutrition investigations of this office and by experiment station workers and other investigators. It is believed that this work may be more appropriately summarized when the investigations now in progress have been continued for a longer time."

In future papers I will take up the subject of bread-making in a way which I believe will be of value.

CLUB NOTES.

West Chazy.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I have decided to ask your advice through this paper which I have been taking for two years. My vitals do not seem to do me any good. I feel weak all the time and am dizzy and nervous, especially at night. I know I have dyspepsia, for I have all the symptoms. My heart often palpitates especially when I walk upstairs or work hard. My doctor advised me to take a laxative steadily. I am taking salt and water before each meal. This relieves the distress in my stomach for a time at first. Some doctors tell me I have catarrh of the stomach. Will you kindly tell me what you think of my case and what will help me? Sincerely, C. B.

Yours is a typical case of dyspepsia and may arise from any one of several causes. Improper food, bad combinations of food, drinking while eating, or insufficient mastication, tea, coffee or bad teeth. Of all the causes enumerated, a lack of thorough mastication is the most prolific cause of dyspepsia. When food is not chewed quite thoroughly a person is very likely to overeat. If you have never thought of this before, try it. Chew each morsel of your food until there is nothing left upon which to chew. The food has become liquid like and digestion is already taking place. The alkaline secretion commonly called saliva begins to digest the starchy substances at once and change them into dextrine and grape sugar. A portion of it is then pressed directly into the circulation giving immediate nutrition and strength. The balance having been thoroughly prepared for the stomach is readily digested and on account of the process of digestion having commenced so quickly, the clamoring for food ceases and a smaller quantity is required to satisfy and nourish.

When food is not properly prepared for the stomach or too much is eaten, it is liable to lie heavily in the stomach. The gastric juices cannot readily have access to the chunks or large unchewed portions and as a result the heat of the body causes fermentation. A gas is formed which distends the stomach, causing pressure against the diaphragm and heart, leading many to believe they have heart disease. Palpitation of the heart is a very distressing thing, but is not necessarily an indication of a weak or diseased heart, but simply means that the food is not digested. Fermentation takes place and the gas causes all the trouble. It is true that in some cases the gastric juices are not properly secreted or they are insufficient. In such cases a digestant may be required for a short time, but not often is it necessary. There are many prepared charcoal tablets which relieve palpitation almost instantly. No liquids should be taken while eating, but at least two quarts of water should be drunk during each 24 hours. Compound gentian sirup, the herb remedy, will aid in a cure and relieve the catarrhal condition of the bowels.

All readers of this publication are at liberty to inquire for any information pertaining to the subject of health. Address all communications to the Home Health Club or Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind., with name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

The Pope's Democracy.

Stories multiply of Pope Pius' democracy. Visitors are received with great simplicity. As soon as one enters he causes him to be seated in an arm chair by his side, chats, laughs and relates anecdotes and stories. The other day the pope, while receiving some women, remarked that they had trains on their skirts. "This is not hygienic," said he; "one gathers thus in the streets a quantity of microbes and other things. As to myself, when they compel me to add a train to my cassock, it bothers me much, although there are four prelates to uphold it." "But, holy father," said one of the women, "we hold up our trains when going in the streets." "That must be very inconvenient," replied Pius X., and passing from word to action the pope made several tours in the room, holding up his robe in mimicry of a fine lady.

RESIST MINERS BY ORGANIZING

Operators in the Bituminous Field Organize National Association.

SAYS WORKERS ARE TOO STRONG

Illinois Man Contends That Diggers of Soft Coal Hold Absolute Sway
Over Employers, Forcing Concessions by Strikes.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—The union miner in the bituminous coal fields of the central, western and southwestern states, who, with the backing of the powerful United Mineworkers' organization, has been enabled to force his point in times of strikes and wage disagreements, is to find an organized opponent of employers in the National Association of Bituminous Coal Mine Operators organized for the announced purpose of resisting the encroachments of the union miner and combating unreasonable demands.

Mine owners from ten states were represented at the convention, which appointed a committee of its members to carry through the preliminary work of forming the new organization. This will be done within a few weeks and the first test of the strength of the defensive combination will be made in January, when the employers meet the miners at Indianapolis to revise the wage agreement that expires April 1.

Purposes Are Outlined.

The organization of the mine owners, brought about by reason of the great strength of the United Mineworkers, plans:

To resist unreasonable wage demands and working conditions.

To enforce the fulfillment of contracts with the unions.

To deal directly with the national executive board of the miners rather than with local bodies.

To mutually protect each other by trade agreement when one member of the association is victim of a strike.

To enforce lockouts where the mine-workers can not be handled in any other way.

No attempt will be made, it was asserted, to get together on prices or to deal as an organization with the railroads. The whole expression of opinion was to the effect that the labor situation was daily becoming more acute, that the miners had builded up a much too powerful organization and that for self-protection the employer was forced into an association that could cope with the miners' union.

"We are in the position now where we can not deal with the miners through our state associations," declared Herman Just, Illinois mine commissioner. "What we want is a national body, with a national executive committee, that will deal on at least equal terms of strength with the national executive committee of the miners."

Miners Are Too Strong.

"Strikes are all too frequent," said Secretary C. L. Scroggins of the Illinois commission. "The miners are too strong and they know it. If they do not like a mine boss or a weigh boss or are dissatisfied with anything they simply say: 'We will not work until you fix this up our way or until you discharge this man.' As a result strike follows strike, one mine after the other shutting down until the miners are appeased. What we plan is to have a national body working in such harmonious strength that we can fight when a fight is necessary."

Unreasonable demands, uncalled-for strikes and generally unsatisfactory conditions for coal mine operators are declared to exist because of the inability of the state organizations to successfully resist the organized miners. Once the new association is on its feet the operators are to be prepared to lock horns with the United Mineworkers and struggle with them against violations of working contracts.

More than 50 per cent of the bituminous coal product is in the hands of the owners who placed themselves on record as favoring a combination for defensive and offensive tussles with labor unions. Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Indian Territory and Texas will be included in the association. Western Pennsylvania has so far kept out of the new move and the West Virginia operators remained away because their workers have never been organized.

The mineworkers are now planning to demand a revised wage schedule. A considerable increase is to be asked by both the bituminous and anthracite miners, the scale to go into effect when the present agreement expires in the spring. The new association of bituminous men will refuse to grant their men an increase at this time.

Explorer Crosses Labrador.

THE JEWISH MASSACRES

Letters From Survivors Tell
Tale of Horrors.

BRUTALITY OF RUSSIAN MOBS.

Jews Dragged Into the Streets and Spiked Through Her Brain—Man's Tongue Pulled Out With Pinchers.
Piteous Pleas to Relatives in Philadelphia For Aid to Protect Lives
From Howling Mobs.

Among the victims of the massacres of Jews in Russian cities during the past month are many who have friends and relatives in Philadelphia. Some of these have received letters from survivors describing the heart rending scenes, says the Philadelphia Press.

Rev. Jacob Chafin of 537 Lombard street has a letter from his wife in Kovno, in which she says:

"There are 2,000 dead here and 5,000 injured. The brutality of the Russian mobs was frightful. Kovno is no longer a city. It is a mass of ruins, and we live in dread of another attack. It may come at any minute, and we are all defenseless."

Herman Sachs of Kiev writes to Samuel Loudon of 764 South Third street:

"A Jewess, Sarah Goldman, was dragged into the streets, and several spikes, fully seven inches long, were driven into her brain with heavy steel sledges. A man named Kaufman was found in the street near my house with his whole lower lip cut off. He was suffering torture, and no one gave him aid. The man's tongue had been pulled out with pinchers."

Aaron Rothstein, another resident of Kovno, writes to his uncle, Abraham Chabrov, of 342 South street:

"I saw the mob break into the home of a poor woman seventy-two years old. She was asleep in bed, but the brutal men entered her room and stoned her to death. There are 5,000 persons here absolutely homeless and without a kopek to buy food or clothing. The terrible winter is already upon us. God knows what will become of us unless aid arrives soon."

John Baum, a merchant at 527 South street, recently received a letter of this sort from his brother Solomon, who lives in Odessa, and pleads for money enough to take him and his family from the country where they see nothing but doom for their race.

The letter was written on Nov. 5. A part of it, which has been translated by Jacob Ginsburg of the Jewish Evening Post, reads:

"Our people are being unmercifully slaughtered in the streets without any interference from the authorities."

"It is more than two weeks since we took refuge here in the cellar. We are under the dreadful terror of being discovered and killed. We are practically shut up without any food or water, and I fear we will starve unless something is done for us."

"We cannot sleep, for the howling and curses of the unruly mobs ring constantly in our ears. They call 'Kill the Jews!' The streets are strewn with mutilated bodies. Many of them are minus heads, limbs and arms. The gutters of the streets have been turned into small rivulets of blood. We fear any minute we will be exterminated."

"Please rescue us. Take us to America or send us enough money to get over the frontier. We don't ask you to help us for a livelihood, only to protect our lives."

"The Russian newspapers don't mention one-half of what takes place. We pray, O God! O God! that you will be able to rescue us so we can flee from terrible Russia and the awful death that faces us."

A Witty Russian Admiral.

Charles Johnston contributes to Harper's Weekly a timely and authoritative article on "The Dawn of Liberty in Russia," in which he discusses the new men and measures brought forward by the recent reformatory movement. Incidentally he tells an amusing anecdote of Admiral Birleff, the new minister of marine—"a rollicking salt, with a Homeric stammer." At the time when Admiral Shestakoff was in power he passed a rigorous rule that his young officers must not bankrupt themselves buying bouquets for visiting royalties. The empress was to visit a ship on which Birleff served. As her majesty descended to the cabin a huge bouquet of flowers mysteriously appeared, and delighted royalty at once took possession of it. Admiral Shestakoff saw the mass of blossoms in the empress' hands and turned furiously to his officers.

"Did I not give orders," he thundered, "that no one must present flowers?" "Nobody did," stammered Birleff. "S-she took them h-herself."

The New Religion of Doctors.

Appropos of Sir Frederick Treves' recent lecture, contending that disease is beneficent, C. D. writes in the Westminster Gazette:

Who'er thinks well to cure a cold
Or cough, himself deceives.
No lozenge, linctus should be sold—
Tis Sir Frederick Treves.

Neuralgic twinge should make you glad.
Sing praises if you sneeze.
Mere microbes slaughter is not sad;
Their deaths are not disease.

The gaping wound should cheer the soul,
Bring joy each broken bone;
The healed are sick; the ill are whole
Alive the dead alone.

ADVERTISING A STORE IS WORK FOR A "FULL-GROWN" MAN!

The Spanish have a homely saying that the "foot of the owner is the best manure for his land."

In a similar sense it may be said that the hand of "the boss" is the best energizer for his store-advertising.

That is to say—his hand, plus his ideas, plus his enthusiasm, plus his faith in his store, plus his tact and experience and knowledge and courage, will make his store-publicity yield a plentiful harvest.

It's not work for the second best brain in the house—it's work for "the boss!"

Not much else about store-keeping matters if the store-advertising is weak—so it's

WORK FOR THE BOSS!

WOMAN KNEELS IN FRONT OF AN ELEVATED TRAIN

Head Falls to Street and Strikes
Shoulders of Passer-by, While Blood Spatters Theater-Goers.

New York, Nov. 23.—Ill in mind and body, Miss Mary G. McCarty, 24 years old, left her home, 209 West Sixty-fourth street, shortly after noon Wednesday and committed suicide by kneeling in front of a fast-approaching elevated train at Sixty-sixth street and Columbus avenue. The platform of the motor car crushed her skull, killing her instantly.

Miss McCarty lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McCarty, and an only brother, James. Until two months ago she was employed in a factory. Hard work weakened her constitution and she was obliged to take a rest. Every day she walked from her home to Roosevelt hospital for treatment. The doctors told her she must have absolute quiet and rest and that she must not worry about her condition or burden her mind with study.

Instead of following the advice she took up the study of stenography and her ambition to improve her education and obtain a better position brought about her death. After luncheon she told her mother she was going for a walk. Miss McCarty walked straight to the elevated station and paced nervously up and down the platform waiting for a train. When one was near she jumped to the track and knelt as if in prayer.

The body was ground to pieces. The head fell to the street, striking the shoulders of a passer-by. Many women theater-bound were splattered with blood. Her identity was established by a sheet of stenographic paper in her purse, on the back of which and under some notes she had written: "Mary G. McCarty, 209 West Sixty-fourth street."

Two Masters to Be Served.

"Can a man serve two masters?" inquired a visiting pastor of a deacon of Trinity church. "He has to, sometimes," confessed the deacon. "I think not," said the pastor. "You have never had boy twins at your house, have you?" inquired the deacon, softly, and the pastor retired in discomfiture.—Boston Herald.

No Lack of Attention.

It was seven-year-old Tom's first visit to the circus. He annoyed his mother by persistent questions as to what was coming next. Finally she said: "Keep your eyes open and you will see for yourself." "Huh!" said the indignant Tom. "I've been here half an hour and I haven't winked once yet."
